Welcome Letter

Dear Colleagues,

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to the 2020 CAER-IFPRI Annual Conference: exploring Urban-Rural Integrated Development in China and to its host institution, Southwest University in Chongqing, China, on October 29-31.

The conference is a significant gathering of the agricultural economics and rural development community. It aims to be a focal point for participants to refresh and re-energize while gaining new skills and knowledge. This conference has traditionally combined great academic content with a series of sessions addressing interesting topics. Simultaneously, in order to better understand the urban-rural integrated development, a priority task of China, this conference has arranged a particular round-table forum on the issue.

Given that the influence of the Covid-19, this conference has offered two kinds of paths for participants. All international scholars and students will join this conference online while the domestic participants in the field. As always, an outstanding gallery of speakers will once again share with us the most significant advance in our field. It intended to provide maximum opportunities for our attendees to meet old friends and make new professional contacts. Also, this conference will provide support for the policy-makers.

The Conference Organizing Committee hopes to make the 12th CAER-IFPRI Annual Conference an exciting, memorable, and healthy event for all participants.

I am looking forward to seeing you all in Chongqing.

Sincerely,

Xian Xin, Chair, 2020 Conference Organizing Committee
Editor-in-Chief, China Agricultural Economic Review
Vice President, China Agricultural University

Rob Vos, is Director of the Markets, Trade, and Institutions Division (MTID) at the International Food Policy Research Institute since September 2017. He is also coordinator of the Food Security Portal. Previously, he was Director of Agricultural Development Economics at the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO). He has also served as FAO's director for social protection, rural employment, and gender equality and as coordinator of FAO's strategic program for rural poverty reduction. Rob holds honorary professorships at the International Institute of Social Studies, The Hague and FLACSO-Ecuador.

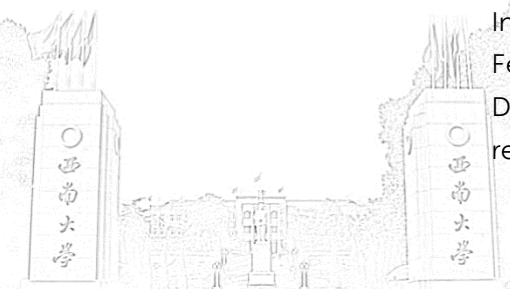

Jayson Lusk is Distinguished Professor and Head of the Agricultural Economics Department at Purdue University. He earned a BS in Food Technology from Texas Tech and a PhD in Agricultural Economics from Kansas State. He held previous appointments at Mississippi State and Oklahoma State Universities and the French National Institute for Agricultural Research. He serves on the executive committee of the USDA National Agricultural Research, Extension, Education, and Economics (NAREEE) Advisory Board.

Lusk is a food and agricultural economist who studies what we eat and why we eat it. He has been interviewed and published editorials in outlets such as the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and the Washington Post, and has appeared on numerous network and national cable television shows. Lusk has published more than 250 articles in peer reviewed journals, including several of the most cited papers in the agricultural economics profession. He has authored five books, the latest being Unnaturally Delicious. Lusk has received numerous awards including the Borlaug Communication Award from the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology and the Lou Ann Aday award, Purdue University's most prestigious research award in the humanities and social sciences. He is a fellow and past president of the Agricultural and Applied Economics Association.

Shenggen Fan is Chair Professor at China Agricultural University (CAU). Prior to joining CAU, Shenggen Fan was director general of the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) from 2009 to 2019. Dr. Fan joined IFPRI in 1995 as a research fellow, conducting extensive research on pro-poor development strategies in Africa, Asia, and the Middle East. He led IFPRI's program on public investment before becoming the director of the Institute's Development Strategy and Governance Division in 2005. He served as member, vice chair and chair of the World Economic Forum's Global Agenda Council on Food and Nutrition Security. Dr. Fan was awarded an honorary life member of the International Association of Agricultural Economists (IAAE) in 2018, and became Fellow of American Applied Economics Association (AAEA) in 2020. In 2014, Dr. Fan received the Hunger Hero Award from the World Food Programme in recognition of his commitment to and leadership in fighting hunger worldwide.

Saturday | October 31, 2020 | 10:30-12:00 | CEM B 201Roundtable Forum and Closing Session*10:30-11:30 Roundtable Forum: Urban-Rural Integration Development in the Post-Covid-19 Era*Moderator: Prof. Junfei Bai, Associate Editor of CAER, China Agricultural UniversityOverview:

In China, the household registration system and a series of associated policies that have been put in place over half a century have primarily divided the nation into two worlds -- rural and urban. Since the 18th National Congress of the Communist Party of China(CPC), China has made great efforts in promoting urbanization and balancing economic development between rural and urban areas. However, barriers still exist.

Recently, the CPC and the State Council announced guidelines on the promotion of integrated urban-rural development, aiming to promote rural revitalization and to fuel the modernization of agriculture and rural society by eradicating all barriers that restrict the free movement of resource, such as capital, talents, between urban and rural. According to this guideline, China will put in place more sound systems and mechanisms for promoting the integrated development by 2035 and will meet the goal of realizing the comprehensive integration of urban-rural areas and rural revitalization by the middle of the century.

These goals are ambitious but with significant challenges. At the same time, the globally-spreading COVID-19 has brought more uncertainties to the world even though it has been largely contained in China. Whether and how it could affect the realization of the integrated urban-rural development goals remain unknown. In this roundtable panel, we invite five distinguished professors and attendees to share their thoughts and insights on these issues. The potential topics to discuss include (but not limited to) the challenges we may face, approaches we may take, international experiences and lessons we may share, and the potential impacts from COVID-19, in promoting China's rural-urban integration.
